Risk Management

The Group's activities expose it to various financial risks. These risks include: market risks (including currency risks, fair value risks and cash flows of the commission rate and price risks), credit risks and liquidity risks. The general risk management program of the Group focuses on the unpredictability of the financial market conditions and seeks to minimize potential adverse effects on the Group's financial performance.

Risk management is carried out by senior management in accordance with the policies approved by the Board of Directors. The most important types of risks are credit risk, currency risk, market risk, fair value risk and commission rate cash flow risks.

The financial instruments presented in the financial position statement include cash and cash equivalents, investments, accounts receivable, some other assets, bank borrowings, term loans, accounts payable and some other liabilities. The registration methods applied for these items are disclosed in the accounting policy for each one of them.

Clearing is carried out between the financial assets and liabilities. The net is to be stated and disclosed in the financial statements, when the Group has a legal right to conduct clearing and the intention to either settle on a net basis or register the assets and liabilities at the same time

Fair Value and Commission Rate Flow Risks

The fair value and commission rate cash flow risks are the exposures of various risks related to the effect of fluctuations in commission rates in the market on the financial position and cash flows of the Group. The group is exposed to commission rate risk in terms of its assets and liabilities related to the commission including loans, bank borrowings and term deposits that are associated with a floating commission.

The impact on income / expenses is the influence of the assumed changes in commission rates on the net results of the Group for one year based on the financial assets and liabilities associated with floating commission and existing as on December 31, 2022 and 2021.

Stock Rate Risk

The stock rate risk is the risk of the fair value decrease as a result of the change in the level of the stock indices and the individual value of each share. The Group's investments available for sale and those acquired for trading purposes are subject to price risks, whereas they consist of investments in equity shares. The Group diversifies its investment portfolio to the possible extent in order to manage the share price risks arising from its investment in equity shares.

Credit Risk

Credit risk is the inability and failure of one party to fulfill the obligations thereof related to the financial instruments, which leads the other party to incur a financial loss. The Group manages its credit risk with respect to the customers by setting a credit limit for each customer and monitoring the outstanding receivables.

The table below represents the maximum credit risk to which the most important items in the financial position statement are exposed:

All amounts in Saudi Riyals Thousands

	2022	2021

Long Term Receivable	1,162,715	1,081,595
Total	4,923,475	2,448,704

Liquidity Risk

Liquidity risk is the risk that an enterprise would encounter difficulties in securing the necessary liquidity to fulfill the obligations and liabilities related to financial instruments. Liquidity risk may result from an inability to sell a financial asset rapidly at an amount close to its fair value. Liquidity risk is managed by periodically ensuring that sufficient liquidity is available through credit facilities to fulfill any future obligations. The sale terms and conditions of the Group require that the amounts must be paid within 30 days from the sale date. Commercial accounts payable are usually paid within 60 days from the purchase date.

Currency Risk

Currency risk is the risk arising from the financial instrument value fluctuation due to changes in foreign exchange rates. The Group monitors the fluctuations in foreign exchange rates and manages its impact in the consolidated financial statements accordingly.
